PEREGRINE QUEST

From A Naturalist's Field Notebooks
by Clayton M. White

White, C., Hard Bound, 416 Pages, Full Color, 7 x 10, dust wrapper, gold stamp spine and cover.

This is the story of a naturalist who spent 50 some years studying the peregrine falcon in its various breeding locations around the world. Because many populations of falcons are migratory, the species in reality probably has occurred over 80% of the globe at one time or another. The narrative is taken from field notes and relates experiences that took place during 50 years of global travel. The story tries to integrate the ethics of landscape stewardship along with information about the falcon itself in various geographic locations.

Anyone who knows this man will tell you stories of his wit as well as his depth of mind and heart. Peregrine Quest: From A Naturalist's Field Notebooks is a poignant memoir of a man and biography of a bird. It is a beautiful example of how one marries one's passion to one's vocation and in the process, changes the world along the way.

Terry Tempest Williams, naturalist and writer. Author of the highly acclaimed Refuge.

IN SEASON

A Louisiana Falconer's Journal
by Matthew Mullenix

Mullenix, M., Soft Bound, 208 Pages, 2005, 6 x 9, and photographs and illustrations.

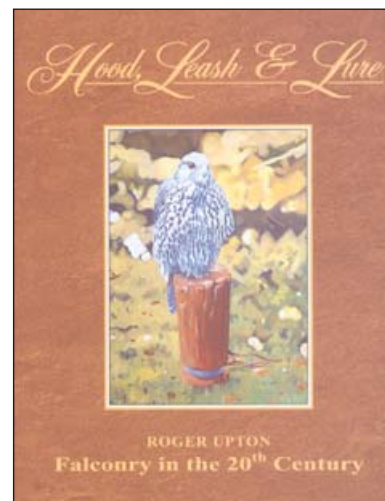

A new book by Matthew Mullenix. It will give you an in-depth insight into the falconer, a falconer's season, and everything in his world. My wife suggests that it is actually required reading, not just for the falconer, but also, for his wife or girlfriend.

David Frank,
Western Sporting

[This book] is the journal of a season, written by a naturalist who is above all a writer, one who is driven to record and describe what he sees, does, and how he feels about it, in the best words he finds for his subject. They are good words indeed; it is no accident that this work is set off by quotes from Ernest Hemingway and Tom McGuane, two other hunters who tried to get it down right . . .

Author and Naturalist

HOOD, LEASH & LURE

Falconry in the 20th Century
by Roger Upton

Upton, R., Hard Bound, 303 Pages, 2004, 7 1/2 x 10, cloth with gold stamped spine, color dust wrapper and numerous sketches and historical photos.

Like the previous books written and produced by Roger Upton, this book is destined to become collectible. It covers the historical events surrounding falconry from 1926 to approximately 1980. It contains numerous accounts of flights by famous hawks and falcons, letters and diary excerpts from famous falconers, and a feel for falconry in Europe during this pivotal period for falconry. Falconers, their hawks and the ground they flew over are documented in this well illustrated and presented 3rd edition by Roger Upton. And, you guessed right—these copies are signed by the author.

FALCON

Macdonald, H., Soft Bound, 208 Pages, 2006, and 5 1/4 x 7 1/5. A sacred god, a military tool, an erotic symbol: the falcon is a natural wonder of speed, power, beauty, and ferocity that has become embedded in human cultures in myriad ways. Helen Macdonald's Falcon examines the diverse symbolism and roles attached to the falcon throughout the centuries.

Macdonald presents a cultural and natural history of the falcon that spans the globe and several millennia. Her wide-ranging survey considers the many facets of the falcon, including conservation efforts; the sport of falconry; and the use of falcons in secret military projects by the Third Reich and the U.S. space program. Falcon also explores the rich imagery of the falcon over history, including the veneration of falcons as gods in ancient Egypt, their role in erotic stories, and even the use of falcons in advertising. Filled with illustrations and fascinating facts.

MUSINGS OF AN AFGHAN FALCONER

Osman, S.M., Soft Bound, 271 Pages, 2005, 6 x 8 1/2. Tipped-in color and b/w plates, b/w photographs, folding plate. In a sequel to his 2001 title, Falconry in the Land of the Sun, celebrated Afghan falconer Sirdar Mohamed Osman gives the world a unique view both of falconry and of his native land. Osman comes from a long line of falconers and has flown many raptors. This book covers the raptors of India, Afghanistan and neighboring areas very well. The hawks are divided by eye color: dark-eyed (falcons) and yellow-eyed (shortwings, eagles and buzzards) birds of prey. It contains chapters on Practical and Historical information; on Falconry and Birds of Brey; and Appendices.

HARRIS' HAWK DAYS

Hollinshead, M., Hard Bound, 117 Pages, Color Dust Wrapper, and 5 1/2 x 8 1/2.

Some will say that getting to the bird—to any bird—is every falconer's responsibility, regardless of risk. But those most familiar with the Harris' will admit there is something more "something strange," in the motivation to help a bird that at some indefinable point became your partner and your friend.

It is surprising, given this hawk's popularity and wide distribution, so few good books about them exist. Harris' hawk stories are common enough in our periodicals but notably rare in hardcover. Like rabbit hawking, the Harris' as a topic generally gets a chapter or two. Martin Hollinshead, in just a few monographs, more than doubled the volume of books in print dedicated to the Harris'. Were he less successful and experienced a hawk, or a poor writer, this might not be an improvement. But we got lucky: These are good, useful books and fun to read.

GUIDE TO HAWK WATCHING IN NORTH AMERICA

Heintzelman, D., Soft Bound, 452 Pages, 6 x 9. Hawk migrations are among the most extraordinary animal spectacles in the world. Each year tens of thousands of raptors follow the Atlantic, Gulf, and Pacific coastlines, inland mountain ridges, and northern and western Great Lakes shorelines en route to their ancestral wintering grounds. As they do, they offer birders, ornithologists, and naturalists opportunities to observe their flight at scores of watch sites.

With this comprehensive guide, veteran hawk watcher Donald S. Heintzelman provides detailed information on 460 watch sites throughout North America and profiles forty-one species of diurnal raptors and vultures, including the cosmopolitan Peregrine Falcon, the critically endangered California Condor, and the Golden Eagle. The Guide to Hawk Watching in North America can lead you to the best raptor-viewing sites on the continent.

Inside you'll find:

- * Descriptions and directions to each watch site
- * Seasonal migration ratings
- * Information on flight style, voice, habitat, nesting, and range
- * Special sections on Bald Eagle viewing, hawk identification, field equipment, and the mechanics of hawk flight
